By S. D. Hatfield

Tip of the Spear By S. D. Hatfield

Danny "Cutr" Pearson is one of the best hackers in the country and the Government needs him to help fight in the next great conflict; a Cyber War between the US and China. Reluctantly drafted, he and some fellow hackers create a computer virus that could end the war.

During the heat of battle it falls on Danny to release the virus. The war ends but the US is taken back to a pre-Internet technology level thanks to virus his team created.

Ten years later Danny must work to undo the damage his virus caused and in the process find the truth behind the events that actually ended the war. From the military base where he now lives, to a farming community in Ohio, Danny must travel the country to reconnect the people with the Information age, with the opposition hot on his heels. In Danny's world there is no black and white, only a color gray that is shaded by personal beliefs.

Tip of the Spear takes readers into a world of hackers, the military, government lies and international intrigue all the while digging in the meaning of patriotism and personal responsibility
